ABOUT ME

I started learning .NET ecosystem with MVC architecture. After reinforced different solutions to go deeper I had the chance to take a real time project which is 'kampyeri.org'. It was time to carry an idea into a real project. Development of kampyeri was a tough task as it had become spaghetti code, also the resources of people was in lack. With my devoted effort and necessary connections who are experts on their fields made this project became better to write and execute.

I strongly agree with many senior developers that progress always starts from the smallest part. This means every teammate can teach me something and I can share my humble knowledge with them.
